Highwaymen Get $5,000 From Gypsies at Beeson; Fail in Perry Township

IS BRUTALLY BEATEN

Hit in Orphans Court Which Prevents Sale of Farm. Frustrates
Seven Men Who Hold up Joe Abram
Near Perryopolis; They Get $130.

Two bandit outrages in the county during the night, in one of which $5,000 in cash and jewels of unestimated value were secured, were reported to the county detective's office. The latter attempt was made in the belief that Joe Abram, a Perry township farmer, had sold his farm and was in possession of $5,000 to $6,000, which is supposed to have prevented consummation of the crime.

A band of gypsies encamped between old Beeson works and Uniontown told of four unnamed men who entered the tent of Joe Western, leader of the band, at 1 o'clock this morning and forced the family to give up a bag said to have contained $5,000, also a lot of diamonds and rare Egyptian coins and property of Mrs. Western.

Miss Anna Western, a daughter, 15 years old, who fought with the bandits and had grabbed away the bag on the men retreated, was struck in the face with the butt of a revolver. The blow broke her nose and split it and blackened her eyes.

Thus injured she ran after the car, intending to climb onto the rear of it and follow the thieves, but one of them saw her and struck her down, rendering her unconscious.

The quartet represented themselves as officers, according to the story of Western and his daughter to County Detective Tony Bell. They said there had been a robbery in Uniontown during the night and that the gypsies were on the spot.

Mrs. Western was sitting in a chair unable to recline because of illness. Her daughter sat beside her. Five other children and the father were asleep in the tent.

In the case of Abram, seven men, some masked, appeared at the home at 11 o'clock and called Abram to the door. They seized him and demanded his money. The hit in the side prevented him having received the price of the farm, and all they got was $130 he had on his person. Abram was said to have fought with the men for 10 minutes before being overpowered.

Five Churches Express Desire to Co-operate in Legion Memorial Service

Thus far the efforts of the special committee of Milton L. Bishop Post, the American Legion, having in charge the memorial exercises to be held in the High School Auditorium on Sunday evening, May 26, to secure the cooperation of the churches by suspending their evening services on that date, in order that the members may join in making it a representative community affair, have resulted in five churches signifying their intention to accept the invitation of the post.

By action of their official boards, or through their pastors, the Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant, Trinity Lutheran, Trinity Reformed and Christian churches have taken steps in the movement. Other churches have the matter under advisement and are expected to give answer later in the week.

The plan of holding a service of this character was worked out by the Bishop post several months ago. About April 1 Max Floto, general chairman of the committee, sent a letter to the pastors of the churches acquainting them with the plan and inviting their cooperation to the extent of omitting their services on the evening set aside for the memorial.

The matter was discussed at the April and May meetings of the Ministerial Association but no formal action was taken by that body. Following the April meeting it was the intention of at least two pastors that some members of the association did not favor the plan and that it would not be generally adopted. Accordingly those two pastors arranged to hold special services next Sunday evening, plans for which cannot now be changed. With the exception of the five churches named notice of acceptance of the post's invitation has not been yet given although, as stated, other churches through their pastors or official boards are considering the matter.

Chairman Floto of the Legion committee appeared before the Ministerial Association at its May meeting in response to an invitation, and explained the nonsectarian and un denominational character of the memorial service plan and stated the reasons for holding it in the High School Auditorium. He repeated the invitation to the members of the association to go along with the Legion in making this a community service for the dead of all wars in which our country has been engaged.

Mr. Floto said this morning that he has not yet been apprised of any official action taken by the association, either in acceptance or rejection of his invitation. He further stated that he has received but seven replies to his formal letter of invitation, five of which were acceptances and two expressions of regret that special services have already been arranged. The latter came from Rev. J. H. Bridgman, pastor of the United Brethren Church, and Rev. C. E. Miller, pastor of the Evangelical Church, South Connellsville.

LEGION POST TO TALK OVER HOME AT RALLY TONIGHT

Biggest Meeting of Organization's History Scheduled For Elks Hall.

LUNCH AFTER BUSINESS

In Addition to Home Project, in Which There is Much Interest, Attention Will Be Given Memorial Day Plans and Fourth Celebration.

Milton L. Bishop Post of the American Legion will hold the "biggest" meeting since its organization to date, in order to accommodate the large crowd of former service men who will attend if the affair is being held at Elks Hall. It will be at 8 o'clock.

A special committee on arrangements has been in charge of preparations for the gathering. It will be featured by many interesting committee reports, including totals collected by the Booster Committee, and the amount cleared on the annual Legion show, "Marchers."

The "big business" tonight is a proposition concerning the erection of a home in the near future. The plan to be placed before the entire post membership have been gone into already by the executive committee and it remains for the action of the post itself to determine what steps may be taken.

There is considerable enthusiasm in Legion circles. The "home" sentiment has been growing and this has served as a basis for the officers to build post interest on. Consequently nearly a 100 per cent attendance is anticipated this evening.

The nature of the entertainment program is not known. There are some well-known speakers to appear, and in addition to the regular there will be other features.

At the close of the entire program a lunch will be served.

Some other matters to be brought before the meeting include the memorial service at the High School Auditorium on Sunday, May 26, and the possibility of staging a big Fourth of July celebration here. There have already been contributions of $200 toward the holding of an old-fashioned Fourth in Connellsville, and former soldiers are inclined to take the celebration into their hands. It has been years since the Fourth was observed other than quietly in this city.

Color Contrasts in Spring Gloves

Gauntlets Carry Beautiful Shades in Embroidery, Ribbon or Leather.

This year, more than ever before, is the demand for originality manifesting itself in gloves, both in those made here and in France, says a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star. With the single exception of evening gloves, the keynote is to be found in color contrasts. Even the gloves that one wears with a tailored costume reflect the tendency toward brilliance and vivacity.

The gloves themselves may range throughout the entire chromatic scale from white to black; it is in the embroidery, and most particularly in the embroidered cuffs, that the contrasts are found. Cuffs turn back, revealing brilliant linings of silk or leather.

Combinations of black and white are many. An interesting and attractive example of the association of these two colors is found in black gloves with reversed cuffs lined with perforated white kid, through which the black ground accents the pattern of the perforations. The same effect is achieved in many instances with gloves lined with black, green, brown, red, or in fact almost any other color.

The lighter shades of tan such as fawn, beige, sand, moiré and mastic are worn extensively this spring, embroidered either in direct contrast or in a darker brown shade. An original note is the tassel. For afternoon wear, gloves with turned-down cuffs brightly embroidered have long tassels pendant from the wrist. Before the season is much further advanced every well-dressed woman will have at least one pair of tasseled gloves. For the most part the tassels are of silk, either to match the leather or in contrast, for example, tassels of gold fringe hanging from gloves of white moiré. The cuffs, turned back, were lined with black moiré on which the design was embroidered in beading.

Beaded edges are seen frequently, cuffs are formed by a series of scallops overlaid after the manner of flower petals. The effect is altogether charming.

Ribbons are used on the new gloves. A pair that is receiving much favorable comment is of beige suede with cuffs edged with a narrow band of silk ribbon, printed with some bright, intricate pattern. Paisley is used freely for this purpose, as are the motifs from China, India, Egypt and the Scandinavian countries.

One of the leading French manufacturers has made gloves of white moiré with short, flaring cuffs to which are attached squares of bright plaid ribbons to make a wide, though very dainty, gauntlet cuff.

The woman who really gives due consideration to appearance and taste wears nothing but pure white gloves for evening. Not even in the stitching is any contrast permissible; embroidery must be as white as the leather itself. Only in the choice of leathers is any latitude allowable this spring. Evening gloves may be of shiny kid or velvet suede.

As for sport, the short two or three-button styles are equally appropriate with long or short sleeves. Twelve or sixteen-button lengths are permissible with short-sleeved or sleeveless frocks for informal occasions; it is a matter for individual decision, but for evening, fashion decrees elbow-length gloves.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. cans instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

What one Woman learned 35 Years ago

Years ago when the first spoonful of Calumet Baking Powder was used, one housewife learned the secret of success on bake-day. She found that what she had thought bad luck in the past was really the fault of inferior leaveners.

Over a third of a century has passed since that housewife experienced the perfect results that came from using

CALUMET
The Economy BAKING POWDER

Today millions upon millions have realized the same satisfaction that goes with using a perfect baking powder.

Calumet has more friends than any of the other brands on the market today—women who after one trial found that for uniform, wholesome bakings it has no equal.

Don't forget that a few cents worth of unreliable baking powder can ruin several dollars worth of other ingredients used in baking. Use the best and know what the results will be.

For Them

Dear Parent:—The present you give to your child who graduates this spring will mean more than you perhaps realize.

It is a great occasion for both of you, an achievement bringing honorable pride that will never and to you and your child. Your present is no ordinary gift. It ought to be one in keeping with the event, enduring, preserving sentiment, and of practical use.

Chief among such presents are watches, diamonds, jewelry, and other articles of gold and silver.

Graduates deserve such gifts. They want them more than anything else. They have reached the age when it is right for them to have these things.

Cost is no valid objection. For no more than you would pay for things less desirable, you can buy a splendid watch, a choice diamond ring, and on either one of these articles purchased for a graduate, by parent or guardian, we will allow a special discount of from 10 to 20%.

You will give earnest thought I know to what the gift shall be, and in reaching exactly the right decision, your visit to our store will be extremely helpful. There are so many appropriate gifts to look at here.

Come in and talk over graduation gifts.

Yours very truly, L. W. CARPENTER.

STRENGTHENING COOLIDGE

Heretofore the passage of a bill in Congress over the veto of the President has been regarded as proof of the popularity or lack of strength of the incumbent of the White House who has withheld his approval of the measure.

This is not true with respect to the action of the House and Senate in overriding President Coolidge's veto of the so-called soldier bonus bill.

The objection in and out of Congress to this bill has not been because of a desire to break faith with the loyal and patriotic young men who rallied to their country's call in 1917-18, but largely to the fact that the bill was framed and carried through Congress as a political movement.

CHIEF FIGURES IN NEWS OF THE DAY.

Below: JAMES A. FOLEY, Surrogate of New York County, has been selected as the leader of Tammany Hall, the Democratic organization in New York City, succeeding his nephew-in-law, the late Charles F. Murphy.

James A. Foley, Surrogate of New York County, has been selected as the leader of Tammany Hall, the Democratic organization in New York City, succeeding his nephew-in-law, the late Charles F. Murphy. Miss Abby Rockefeller, 21-year-old daughter of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and granddaughter of the oil king, was convicted in a New York City Traffic Court as a spender and freer on a speeding sentence. Miss Gladys, of San Jose, Cal., former "Miss Midland" husband of Miss Nutzenauer, world famous singer, has given up his job as a chauffeur to enter the heavyweight ranks, seeking Jack Dempsey's crown. In his first fight he knocked out Danny Gallagher in three rounds. It took five minutes to restore Gallagher to consciousness. Henry Ford, America's first automobile race driver and now her richest man, will act as referee and be in complete charge of the classic 600-mile auto-race at Indianapolis, Ind., on May 30.

ELECTION ISSUES

What is the real issue of the coming election? The issue of exposure, near and far, is a lesson beyond price. The issue is money. In other words, the result of materialism gone mad. So says Norman Thompson in the June issue of Northern International Magazine.

Mr. Thompson, so far as can be seen, will be nominated by the Republicans. Not only he, however, but the party will be voted on. The vote in one direction swept over the country in 1930. Will there be as big a swing in the opposite direction next November?

Corruption, materialism, inefficiency, whether in the Capitol or the Veterans' Bureau and with the plain man in the street, especially the plain man in the West. Injustice will be done to individuals as in always the case in a general movement. The election will turn on how strong a feeling is engendered that there is too much money in the government and that the moral atmosphere has been low. There is a cry to be heard in the West.

is little or no complaint from any quarters. The banks reflect the volume of business and wages, and as long as they make such a showing as recent reports indicate, there is not much cause for alarm. Pennsylvania's varied industries are a safeguard that strikes against a unified variety of industries do not enjoy.

Engagement Announced.
Mr. and Mrs. John Weaver of South Fourth street, Youngwood, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Charlotte Leverage Weaver, and Charles William Sams of Mammoth. The engagement will terminate in a wedding to take place on the night of Wednesday, May 28, at 8 o'clock, in the home of the bride, Mrs. M. T. Snyder, mother of the bride, at Youngwood United Brethren church, will officiate. Mr. Sams and his bride will live in Pleasant Valley.

THE LESSONS.

"Mother," I said, "it's a long, long time, this time of the year we have, and you have traveled it day by day through its laughter and hurt and care. And what shall we teach of the things we've learned in the children who follow on? And what shall we give them to keep them safe in the days when we are gone?"

Then we talked it over—life's fame and wealth and cunning and strength and skill. And the teacher of a noble deed, and the thing that is called a thrill.

And the teacher of the voice, and the pit, and the deep sleep when pleasure is running strong. When it seems so hard to do the right and so easy to do the wrong.

And the mother said: Let us keep them close, my dear, close to us day by day. Let us teach them never to let go again. Let us teach them to value this home we keep and never to let it slip to shame.

Let us teach them that honor is a great thing, and that fortune is a slip of foam.

"Let us teach them to follow the friendly ways, to serve, to be fair and kind. To teach them pleasures where they grow, but to leave no wrong behind. Let us give them a faith to lean upon when the shadows of sorrow fall. And let us teach them that the future is all."

ARGENTINA ADOPTS GENERAL PENSION LAW FOR WORKERS

Strongly Opposed Because of Assessment Laid Upon Wage Earners.

MANY GLARING DEFECTS

BUEENOS AIRES, Argentina (By Mail to United Press)—On April 13 the new Argentine pension law went into effect. It provides that any employee, who has been on the job 25 years can retire at full pay for the balance of his life, no matter what his age.

The motto of the Argentine senators who passed this advanced piece of social legislation apparently was to "go the limit for the voters."

The pension plan, known as Law No. 11,339, provided pensions for employees, including laborers, of the most important marine, commerce and industry, the graphic arts and the publishing business.

So far the biggest opposition to the law has come from the people it was designed to favor—the working people. On payday, April 30, a million or so employees (nearly all workers here are paid monthly) found five per cent less in their pay envelopes, this five per cent having been taken out for the pension fund, therefore the long and loud howl.

The feeling is strong that in the present form the law cannot be long enforced. It is too full of discrepancies which must be eliminated and of obscure points that must be cleared up before the law can be put on a satisfactory working basis in the meantime. However, business men throughout Argentina must comply as best they can with the law's provisions.

In this law the truth of the old saw, "what's one man's meat is another's poison," stands out forcibly. Any employee or laborer who has been working, say, for 25 years and 11 months, can, by paying into the fund a monthly salary, retire on a pension at full pay, no matter what his age may be; whereas, the employee or laborer who has just secured his first job will have to effect regular payments over a period of 15 years in order to enjoy the privilege. The former temporarily employed in Argentina must pay into the pension fund at the same rate as Argentine citizens, even though he may have no hopes of ever benefiting thereby, due to his intention of leaving the country prior to the expiration of the 25-year period.

Likewise, take the case of the employed who later enters the employer class. While employed they must pay into the pension fund their regular quotas, but on becoming employers they must relinquish all hopes of receiving anything back from the fund.

In many instances employees have demanded, under threats of strike, that employers pay not only the five per cent assessed against the workers but also the five per cent required to be paid by the employers. This is specifically forbidden by the law.

At the end of each month, beginning with April 30 all employers entered in the shipping, commercial, industrial, printing or publishing businesses must make up a list in special forms provided for this purpose by the Pension Board of all employees and workmen over 18 years of age and submit this list to the director of the respective fund. The law provides that this list must be sent to the director of the respective fund within 10 days after the end of each month and must contain the name, age and wage or salary of every workman or employee, as well as how long they have been in the employer's service. The list must also show the amount deducted from the wage or salary of each workman or employee, the reduction being five per cent of the monthly wage or salary. The list must be accompanied by a bank deposit slip showing the amount deposited.

THE AUTOCRAT

"How did Three-Finger Sam come to leave town?"

"He got too influential," answered Chet Joe. "All our civic associations from the chamber of commerce to the Jack Rabbit Club decided to leave him out for his and the Gals to part."

"I can remember when his word was law."

"That's what spoiled him. He got so looked-up to he bossed the town. He thought he could open a jackpot, draw four cards and win without a word of criticism."—Washington Star.

A Convincing Yarn

Prominent Sharon Druggist Gives Expert Testimony

Tells of Actual Results Patrons Have Received, and of Their Statements to Him.

RECOMMENDATION IS UNQUALIFIED.

Declares Sulac to Be a Splendid Remedy for Stomach, Liver and Blood Troubles.

Other Druggists Over Wide Territory Are Having Similar Experience With This Remarkable New Remedy.

Druggists in every section of Pennsylvania who know Myor Collins, prominent Sharon druggist, will be interested in the experience he has been having with now remedy for stomach and blood troubles. Druggists, naturally, are skeptical when asked to order a new medicine. They are used to having customers tell them that their medicine is the best in the world. So when they find that a medicine is all and more than was claimed for it they are both surprised and delighted.

Mr. Collins very frankly says that when he was asked to place a trial order for Sulac he thought it was just an ordinary medicine. The one thing that made it stand out was his record of sales in other places. So he took the progressive but careful business man that he is he ordered a comparatively small quantity. Somewhat to his surprise the people who bought the first of it came back for more. By the time they had taken two or three bottles they commenced telling him of the good it was doing them. This started him to investigate, and he has written the manufacturers the following statement:

"About two months ago I took the agency for Sulac, and I must say that it is a splendid remedy for stomach, liver and blood troubles. I have found it to be a product of real merit, and am glad to recommend it."

"When the food doesn't digest and lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, generating foul gases, bad breath, and a bloated short-winded condition it is no wonder you get no good from the food you eat, or that you grow pale, irritable, sleepless and headache. Constipation, heartburn, loss of appetite, restlessness, stomach pain, and even more serious complications arise eventually if neglected. It is for these distressing complaints that Sulac is especially recommended. If you will give it a trial you will find that it is all that is claimed for it. In fact if you take six bottles and are not satisfied with the results your druggist is authorized by the manufacturers to refund your money. A. Clark, Connelleville Drug Co. and other high class druggists—Advertisement. 30-2 Sunday.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

To Foster Unselfishness

One Mother Says: The only child is so easily made selfish that a mother should be found for her children and sisters to teach her unselfishness. I took my little girl to a orphaned children's home once when I was making a charity call and she became particularly interested in one of the little orphans. I encouraged her to remember to pass on some of her books and games and to share pleasures with her. Now she does it as a matter of course. Unselfishness cannot be taught in the abstract. GULBRANSEN The Registering Piano

The Registering Piano

The Gulbransen Registering Piano of today is the world's latest achievement in musical instruments.

It stands absolutely alone in the artistic results it produces and the ease with which they are obtained. It is played by music roll and pedal, as are other instruments of its type, but there the similarity ends.

The Gulbransen registers one's exact "touch" on each note. It can be played with all the feeling, the life, the delicacy of the very finest piano music you ever listened to.

Because these are facts, we are confident that the Gulbransen is not confused with other instruments of the same type. We challenge investigation of it as an Easy-to-Play Registering Piano that registers your exact touch, that registers your tone, that registers your expression.

THAT'S WORSE

A cashier at a bank turned up looking pale and haggard.

"What's wrong, old chap?" inquired one of his colleagues.

"Toothache," groaned the other, "hadn't a wink of sleep all night."

"Ah," said his colleague, sagely, "you should try the Cope system. Just repeat to yourself 50 times every day, 'Got behind me, pain!'"

"Not likely," snapped the sufferer, angrily. "Do you think I want 'lum-hago'?"

Her Ring

He took her hand in his and gazed proudly at the engagement ring he had placed on her finger only three days before.

"Did your friends admire it?" he inquired (suddenly).

"They did more than that," she replied, calmly. "Two of them recognized it."

Activities of County Red Cross Organization During Month of April

A report of the activities of the Fayette County Red Cross for the month of April, classified according to departments follows:

Home Service Bureau.
During the month of April a total of 230 cases were handled by this department. Seventy-one cases of ex-service men or their families, 149 civilian cases and 10 cases of men now in the military service. These figures show there is no let up in this branch of Red Cross service. During the month financial relief granted amounted to over $300.00.

Bureau of Nursing.
The Red Cross nurses made 145 visits, including bed side, pre-natal, infant and child welfare nursing. Twenty patients were taken to county hospitals and Pittsburgh institutions. One-hundred eighty-five miles were traveled in carrying on this nursing service. Also, clinics were held, social service visits made and other forms of service carried on.

During April the Junior Red Cross made an appropriation of $100 to the National Children's Fund. Various activities were conducted by the Junior auxiliaries throughout the county. This branch of Red Cross service is growing in popularity and many schools throughout the county are taking up suggested activities as planned by the National Junior Red Cross.

Child and Health Centers.
Well baby health centers were conducted during the month of which 37 babies were brought for examination. The chapter also conducted its regular health clinic at headquarters in Uniontown, under the direction of Dr. C. R. McKenna of the State welfare Department.

Bureau of Life Saving.
Under the direction of Dr. H. A. Helms of Uniontown, the newly appointed chapter director for Life saving, classes in swimming and Life Saving instruction have been formed. It is the plan of this department to organize a Red Cross Life Saving corps in Fayette County in the near future.

Clean Your Teeth Clean Your KIDNEYS

You clean your teeth regularly to preserve your health. Poison is daily accumulating in the kidneys. Get rid of it with the best kidney medicine you can get.

Dr. Carey's Marshmallow Prescription 777 (roots and herbs) has helped thousands—it will help you. Thousands die who ought not to die—keep your kidneys clean. It's guaranteed by C. Roy Hetzel and druggists everywhere. Remember the name—Advertisement.

First Aid.
Plans are being made for the extension of First Aid activities throughout the chapter territory. Several classes are being conducted at present, but chapter officials feel this is such an important branch of Red Cross work that many more classes should be formed.

Home Nursing and Care of Sick.
During the month of April a class in home nursing and care of the sick was organized. Both Red Cross nurses have been authorized by division headquarters to act as instructors in home nursing and it is the plan to organize additional classes in the near future. Home nursing instruction is as important to the housewife or young woman as First Aid is to the industrial worker.

Disaster Relief.
Red Cross disaster relief played an important part in the chapter activities for the month of April. The Fayette County chapter was called upon to render assistance in three disasters within a month's time. The first was the disastrous flood in the Potomac Valley when Washington headquarters called on the chapter for assistance. The executive secretary spent nearly a week in the flood area. The second disaster was the Fairchance fire. Chapter workers were on the job promptly and a careful survey showed there was considerable work for the Red Cross to do. Every possible assistance was rendered in this disaster and the Fayette County chapter up to the present time has expended $160.00 in furnishing aid and relief. The third disaster where the chapter was called upon for assistance was the Newwood mine explosion. Again the chapter was called upon by division headquarters and Mrs. G. W. Buckner, secretary of the home service bureau went to Newwood to assist in the Red Cross survey and rehabilitation work.

Other Activities.
During the month of April the chapter had some splendid newspaper publicity of its various activities. A letter was received from Division headquarters complimenting the chapter of the excellent publicity given by the newspapers of the county. The chapter feels it is extremely fortunate in having such splendid cooperation with the press, for only through this course can the chapter keep the public informed of its activities. Approximately 10 volunteers rendered assistance to the chapter workers during the month and contributions of 24 articles of clothing were made for use of the loan closet.

THE STORM DAUGHTER, the feature picture today at the Paramount presents Priscilla Dean in one of the best roles of her screen career. Miss Dean has the part of Kate Masters, daughter of a retired sea captain resident of a small village on the ocean. While out fishing her boat is deliberately run down by a vessel commanded by Brutus Morgan, characterized by Tom Santschi. Morgan's abuse of his men drives them to mutiny and he is placed in chains, guarded by Kate, while the crew strive to save the ship from destruction. In a tempestuous sea, Morgan is rescued by Kate, and they are forced to escape in lifeboats, and finally they reach the haven of a rocky island. Here are enacted many dramatic scenes through the medium of which is completed the story of how a woman's sacrifice is rewarded. Others who have notable parts in the cast are Bert Roach, William B. Davidson, J. Farrell McDonald, Cyril Chadwick, Harry Mann and Alfred Fisher.

Wednesday and Thursday Alice Lake and Milton Sills will be featured in "Environment."

The Soisson

"THE COMMON LAW," on view today and Wednesday at the Soisson is a screen version of Robert Chambers' famous novel with Corinne Griffith, Conway Tearle, Elliott Dexter, Doris May, Hobart Bosworth, Bryant Washburn, Miss du Pont, Harry Myers, Phyllis Haver and Wally Van appearing in the stellar roles. The setting of "The Common Law" are all in perfect keeping with the story and no effort or expense has been spared to preserve the illusion of the picture which depends to a large degree on accuracy in detail backed by an absolute knowledge of just what is required. The locale of the story is the Art Colony in New York's Greenwich Village and the theme revolves around the Bohemian lives of the villagers. There is probably no place in this country over which there hovers a more romantic atmosphere than the village and its people. Popularized by artist-illustrators, sculptors, authors and writers, there is concentrated within its narrow confines, much of the genius of America. The Common Law treats interestingly and in eloquently with the lives of these fascinating people.

Thursday, Friday, and Saturday "Thundering Dawn" will be shown.

The Orpheum

"FASHION ROW," a drama of thrills and romance provides splendid entertainment today and tomorrow at the Orpheum. Murray, famous screen star is seen in a dual role. Written for Miss Murray by Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin, "Fashion Row" gives the popular Metro star the interesting dual role of two sisters.

One of them is the famous Olga Petrova, toast of Broadway and the other is a grubby little Russian peasant girl named Zita who comes to America to find her sister. On the immigrant steamer Zita meets a sinister figure named Kaminitoff. To Kaminitoff she shows a photograph of her sister and its unmistakable resemblance to a dancing girl he once knew in a Russian diva brings back to Kaminitoff bitter memories so he plans to make Zita the instrument of his revenge and in New York quarters her on a East Side with Papa and Mama Lavin, meanwhile has given up her stage career to marry young Eric Van Corland son of one of Kaminitoff's oldest and most aristocratic families. The couple plan a Russian mask ball on the Van Corland estate, and so that the party may have a real Russian flavor Jimmy Morton who is Eric's friend goes to the Levitzky to procure real vodka. He meets Zita and is suspicious of her resemblance to Olga. What transpires in the following scenes is said to make "Fashion Row" one of the most exciting romances of the season.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday Bryant Washburn will be featured in "Thundering Dawn."

Duds Favored by Women of America

Tailored Suit, Knitted Garments, Disliked in Paris, Are O. K. Here.

The contrast between French style and the more pure American variety is amusingly illustrated in some of the things—essential and otherwise—which French women will not have, and vice versa, observes a fashion critic in the New York Times. The tailored suit, for example, adored by Americans, avoided by Parisians, is this season more obviously popular than ever before.

The tailored suit is one typical street costume, simple, severe, chic and perfect in workmanship, a lady's dress. The Parisian woman, equally charming, will wear a one-piece, a coat dress, a three-piece, anything other than the strictly tailored frock.

To us the sometimes dainty, occasionally flax and elaborate, always convenient shirtwaist is one of the most attractive houses come to us from Paris. New women will have none of them. And the knitted frock, so popular on this side of the water, and few admirers in France, except, of course, in the heavier wools for the sports.

The Americans delight in knitted suits, shirts, jackets, sweaters and hats, and the latter is a joy to be held in one such outfit in the new month, especially of white, in combination of pale blue, pale green, yellow or pink. The prettiest little suits of this sort are shown by some of the prominent American houses, the smaller specialty shops and sporting goods establishments. The color is usually in bands on the sweater or coat, at the skirt bottom, and trimming the collar and cuffs.

Another fancy of Americans which finds no response at Paris is that of "fancy" goods. Everywhere in the States, some of the smartest sports town, suits and street suits are made of Three-Piece Suit in White and Black. Chiffon Bodice. Disliked in Paris.

"English materials," as they are called. They include all the rough serge, chevrons, humpskins, the Scotch mixtures and plaids, that like black satin and white linen, are staples of the wardrobe.

French women prefer the smooth sort of materials that cling more closely to the figure, and that add no width to the silhouette. This is especially significant now that they have been so universally discarded and classic styles only are worn.

Traveling Coat and Dress

A summer coat and a silk dress of hatters or crepe will be very good for traveling. Both of crepe are also quite serviceable. Have your undergarments in packing it and also ease in carrying for it. You will need shoes for wear with the suit or dress and a change to dress shoes for dinner. Hose of lighter color and to match the hat and gloves can be worn with the dark shoes.

High Waistlines

Party frocks for coming girls are more than reminiscent of the time of the Empire—Josephine—they are practically copies of the gowns of those picturesque days. With their high waistlines and flowing ruffles of tulle they are delightfully old-fashioned. Some are carried out in quaint pompadour silks.

Using Dye on Straw Hat

When renovating a straw hat by using dye the softness of the straw may be retained by first thoroughly wetting the hat with water and then applying the dye. It also makes the dye flow more smoothly.

In the Rose Shades

Lingerie has gone back to the rose shades. These are not, however, the pale pinks, but deep tones of dawn and the blush rose type.

'First Aid' For Sick Children

THE experienced mother is not alarmed when a child becomes sick. She knows that most of the ailments of childhood are trifling. If it seems serious she calls a doctor, but whether or not she calls him she gives, first of all, a good laxative medicine. The doctor would advise that anyway. It is his "first aid." Such experienced mothers as Mrs. Everett E. Hunt of Belton, Okla., who has three children and never any sickness, and Mrs. F. B. Kunkle of Prosser, Wash., tell us give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at the first indication of sickness. Such timely doses have saved them much worry.

The Meaning of "Good"

All doctors agree that a thorough cleansing out of the bowels is of first importance for it removes dangerous intestinal poisons. They will also advise a "good laxative," and by "good" they mean one that is effective and yet harmless. They know that there are physicians that never should be given to children a cathartic, which is mercury and loosens the teeth; phosphorus, a coal-tar drug that causes skin trouble; salts, which concentrate the blood and dry up the saliva. They consider Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin safe for all ages as they know it is a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable emollients. The formula is on the package.

Give Laxative for Colds

Adults should have at least one movement of the bowels every 24 hours, and children two or three. Failure to have it means constipation, then headache, biliousness, drowsiness, lack of appetite. Give a dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at bedtime, and there will be health and good feeling by morning. A dose costs less than a cent, and a bottle can be had at any drug store. Colds and constipation come together, so if you notice coughing or sneezing stop it at once with Syrup Pepsin.

Would You Want to Try It Free Before Buying? I need a good laxative and would like to know what you say about Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin by actual test. Send me a free trial bottle. Address to: Name: Address: Not more than one free trial bottle to a family.

SURVEYOR FINDS TWO BIG LAKES ON BAFFIN ISLAND

Are Comparable in Size to Lakes Ontario—Iron and Coal Found.

That the southern part of Baffin Island contains two lakes comparable in size with Lake Ontario, and that the island, which is almost 1,000 miles long from north to south, is nearly five times as large as Cuba, were some of the striking facts brought out in a report by F. D. Henderson, D. L. S., of the topographical survey of Canada. Mr. Henderson, in the capacity of surveyor and topographer, accompanied the 1923 Arctic expedition of the northwest territories branch, Department of the Interior of Canada, under J. D. Craig, D. L. S. His duty was to survey lots for roads for the Royal Canadian Mounted police, the Hudson's Bay company and other private interests at the points at which the Canadian government steamer Arctic called, and to take magnetic observations and make topographical surveys wherever possible. In all, eight lots were surveyed at Craig Harbor, Dundas Harbor, Eskimo Point, Pond Inlet and Pangnirtung, and about 100 traverses were run at the two latter places. As the governing lines of the Dominion lands survey system have not been extended to the Arctic islands, all lots were classed and numbered as group lots.

The conditions were unusual. Continuous daylight prevailed during part of the period in which the surveys were made. Solar observations were the only kind taken and Greenwich time was obtained from the ship's chronometer checked up by wireless, that great aid to the scientific worker in the field.

In the intervals between survey work trips were made to inspect outcroppings of iron and coal (one of the latter is used locally as a source of fuel supply) and the condition of the Eskimo habitations, the character of the vegetation, etc., were noted. Moose and hares were everywhere in abundance, and flowers, the most conspicuous of which was the yellow Arctic poppy, grow in all sheltered places, sometimes within a few feet of a glacier. No trees were found, the nearest approach being the shrublike Arctic willow with branches half an inch in diameter. The branches spread out horizontally close to the ground. It was sometimes possible to gather enough of the wood to boil a kettle of water. Blueberries were found at Pond Inlet, but smaller and not so sweet as in southern Canada.

At Pond Inlet and Pangnirtung there are native villages near the Royal Canadian Mounted police and Hudson's Bay company posts, containing normally from 75 to 100 Eskimos each, although at times as many as 200 natives assemble at these points. Through the former post lines in permanent huts, under the direction of the authorities, have been neatly arranged in a line along the shore.

Dinsdale and Amos Roberts, the captain of the guard, rode in advance of the treasure-coach. Throughout the hills and at the various ranches, or stations, relays of horses had been waiting for a month. Horseman Webb, sitting his horse awkwardly, was one of the eight men galloping along behind the coach. A few hundred feet in the rear came two more guards.

All the men carried their rifles ready for instant service, although no attack, in the hills at least, was expected. Good time was made over the country road, and none of the treasure men observed anything to arouse suspicion. Ten of the guards had made the trip several times and scoffed at the idea of road agents daring to try for the gold. The holding up of one consignment and the theft of twenty-five thousand dollars only proved it was foolish to send out treasure under a guard of two men.

Roberts admired Dinsdale immensely because of his exploits among the Opalins. Credit for the escape from Sittie Butte was given almost entirely to him despite his insistence that Selzers deserved all the praise. Deadwood City could imagine the picture man in only one role, a harmless and very clever peddler of paper pictures. So Dinsdale's vehement disclaimer was accepted as the workings of modesty.

Roberts elected to ride with the new man and he kept his tongue wagging incessantly. Dinsdale listened, slowly appreciating the man and concluding that the fellow would know no fear in an emergency, but would be easily deceived. Among other gossiping things Roberts said there would have been thirteen guards if one of the regulars hadn't been intoxicated when it came to pull out from the gulch.

"And thirteen is unlucky. I'm mortal glad he quit. Not enough agents in the hills to hold up this outfit," he boasted.

"I should say not. Guarding a coach is soft money. Indians may give us some fun, but the agents will think twice," replied Dinsdale.

At Rapid City fresh horses were ready. The coaching of the coach carried but little interest. It carried much wealth secretly guarded. The agents wanted none of that game. But the town was most anxious to learn the latest Indian news, as extravagant stories of danger had been relayed by volunteer and irresponsible messengers. The guards were eagerly questioned. Was Crazy Horse camping on the Belle Fourche? Had Sitting Bull cut off the Rosebud, and Fort Totten really with a force of six thousand braves? Was there any truth in the report that the bulk of Crook's command had suffered the fate of Oster's five companies? On receiving reassuring answers, the guard continued in following the winding out of the gold-encased a fear of an early attack. One man bitterly complained:

"They'll take out the dust under guard, but they can't fix it so the women and children will be safe. Gold's more precious than human life."

"We've got to be in Sidney in fifty hours. So long," shouted the driver as the last trace was secured; and the long whip cracked over the leaders and the coach plunged ahead.

With the Spring creek crossing ahead the rear guard rode in closer. Horse-thieves were reputed to have their headquarters somewhere on the divide between the Spring and Rapid, and while it was not generally believed that the horse-thieves and road-agents belonged to the same band it would be easy for lawless men to desert one vocation for another when a quarter of a million dollars was involved.

Dinsdale had hung back with the main body, but after the first two miles he gave Horseman Webb a signal to follow him and galloped on in advance. Webb pondered after him and was riding by his side when the two turned a wooded bend and were lost to view. Roberts heard Dinsdale call out sharply and spurred forward to investigate. He found Dinsdale aloof and trying to lift Webb back on his horse.

"Nag stumbled and threw him. Never tried to save himself. Landed like a bag of meal, right on his head." "Leave him lay till the coach comes up and we'll stick him inside. Hi—! of a guard!" growled Roberts.

They had gone too far to take him back to Rapid City and, failing to find a camp of miners on Spring or Battle creeks, it would be necessary to take him through to Chester City on French creek. The man was unconscious but breathing in a stertorous manner. Roberts examined him and pronounced it to be a fracture on top of his head. Dinsdale was more optimistic and said the skull was not broken.

Disposing of him they resumed their way. Roberts now riding ahead with Dinsdale. Horseman Webb had done most of the talking. Now Dinsdale gestured for him to pay sharp attention and began to talk. Roberts was porous for several minutes to speak when his companion became silent. Again Dinsdale spoke, curtly and briefly.

"That's all. Don't ask any questions. Ride back. Soon we'll come to a suppling across the road."

Following his horse Roberts galloped away, back to the coach. Dinsdale dismounted and walked on the right of his horse, his eyes searching the road ahead. A quarter of a mile brought him in sight of a sapling lying across the road. He shifted his gaze to the bush growth just beyond this and came to a stop. From behind him came the faint thrum of racing hoofs, each moment growing more audible. A masked figure leaped from the bushes ahead and gently called out: "D—n you, Dinsdale! You've betrayed us."

As the fellow spoke up went his gun and as it exploded two shots from the bushes roared out. The horse went down, shot through the head. Around it Dinsdale, his right arm helpless. He braced his left hand and the man in the road swung wildly, but doggedly continued waving the trigger although his head went wild of the mark. As he collapsed a muffled scream rang out from the bushes, a howl of rage rather than pain, and there was a crashing in the underbrush as men lustily rode away. Roberts dashed up with half of the guards, shouting into the woods at random. Three men ran to the prostrate man and pulled off his mask. Dinsdale forced himself to look. It was the man known as Ray, and a red welt showed through the clipped hair where Dinsdale had struck him down in the collar of the horse thief's rendezvous.

"And Joe said his name was Roach. Roach of Crook City," cried Dinsdale with a hysterical laugh. He grabbed a horse by the bridle and crawled into the saddle.

"Stop! Don't let him go! He's hurt!" howled Roberts, and he made a dash to seize the bridle. But the horse jumped ahead and tore down the road.

As Dinsdale swept around the next bend he glimpsed a figure crashing into cover on his right, and he knew the fugitive had crossed the road and were making for their hiding place on the divide. He sent his horse through the alders and hazel and gained the foot of a long slope where the growth was pine and spruce and more open. One horseman was riding into a dry gulley. Another had elected to take a trail leading along the south bank of the gulley. As the man in the gulley was the easier to follow Dinsdale turned his attention to him. He heard the sound of another horseman crashing through the growth to the north of him and from the rapidity of his advance it was obvious he was descending, rather than ascending the slope. This puzzled Dinsdale, as he did not believe any of the guard had had time to get above him.

As he drove his mount into the gulley he gave a last look for the new-comer. Then the bank of the dry water course shut off all view except that straight ahead, and the ringing of a rifle bullet from the top of the south bank warned him of a double danger. A bit of smoke on top of the bank revealed the source of the shot, but the man's aim was off all view except that straight ahead, and the ringing of a rifle bullet from the top of the south bank warned him of a double danger. A bit of smoke on top of the bank revealed the source of the shot, but the man's aim was off all view except that straight ahead, and the ringing of a rifle bullet from the top of the south bank warned him of a double danger.
